

SPECIAL TOPICS IN BIOLOGY: BIOETHICS
Instructor: Craig DaRif
SUMMER READING 2010

The Bioethics class requires students to think and write reasoned arguments for a variety of bioethical issues. In order to understand the format, arguments, fallacies etc. that accompany such reasoning, the following book is REQUIRED reading for summer preparation. Please purchase your own copy of the book and bring it to class the FIRST class period in the fall. I expect the book to be ANNOTATED as evidence of your diligence in completing the reading. The annotated book will be the first grade of the semester and WILL NOT be accepted late. There will also be a test over the material in the book during the first few days of class.

If you are unwilling to complete the required reading, it is suggested that you reconsider your enrollment in the bioethics class.

Summer Reading:

Writing Philosophy: A Student's Guide to Writing Philosophical Essays by Lewis Vaughn